The Pailly Press. DONGKONG, MARCH 17TH, 1966.

A CIRCULAR issued in the Colony this week -by what society it is immaterial to mention—says it is " pitiably sad " to think of the number of people whose mental exercise consists of "merely frittering newspaper and novel reading." By a coincidence, on the same day Mr. H. HURSTHOUSE was lecturing to the United Church Literary Society on "The Evolution of the Modern Novel." The subject interests and concerns such a wide circle that it is really lifted higher than the level of most of the side issues discussed in the intervals dividing supposedly more momentous happenings. The prevailing comment is that the favourite reading of the modern Briton, as proved by sales and public library statistics, is trashy in the extreme. As usual, there is something to be said on the other side; but our opinion is that the mental pabulum of the average Briton to-day is not only unprofitable but injurious, and that it largely accounts for the degeneracy which we have just noticed as making itself apparent during the general elections, and in other ways to which we have not referred. Unfortunately, the phenomenon appears to be like the earthquake, a disturbing influence which we may study but not cure. The local lecturer made an apt selection in describing the modern novel as a product of evolution. Like Topsy, it has certainly "growed." Everybody has laughed at the parenthetical remark by the late Mr. Gil-EERT in that "Bab Ballad" which conveys he pessimistic gush of a sembre young | did not encourage the experiment.

sentiment, a dehauch of artificially inspired make some thoughtful men wonder for a moment if the now universal ability to read has been a unmixed blessing.

An observer in London, writing from the point of view that it is demand that has created the supply, remarks: "The origin of this demand may be found in the deficiency. Cheap issues necessitated cheap workmanship, the employment of authorship of a considerably lower grade, and thus the modern ephemeral and sensational novel was started. Once having obtained a hold its growth became prodigious, until to-day it so thickly covers standard works beneath it." The only practical sugges-

VISIT OF THE FRENCH FLEET.

Admiral Richard, in command of the French squadron on the China station, has informed L'Avenir du Tonkin that the departure of the fleet for Hongkong, to return the visit of the British squadron to Saigon, has been delayed for several days, but that in all probability the visit would be made before the end of the present month. One of the causes for the delay was the departure of Admiral Noel and his succession by Vice-Admiral Moore.

The proposer stated that a certain country has a keen desire to obtain this island and to check them, it is necessary to open King-chow to foreign trade. It is now reported that Viceroy Shum has replied by telegraph that there are many objections to opening King-chow to foreign Cold Roast Wild Duck and Plain Salad. Sweets trade. He asks that the matter be left for future consideration.

A political parody has appeared, which be seen from the two stanzas we quote that political poets are not always consistent. One as to how John Ball allow the business man to Africa, and the other objects to foreigners suffering and struggling, the charitable When Chinese from the Cape are gone

CHINESE LABOUR IN THE TRANSVAAL.

LONDON, March 14th. Mr. Winston Churchill, in the House of Commons, explained that the abrogation of the Chinese Convention dealing with coolie labour would require the assent of China, and that it would affect the emigration of the Straits and Burmah, which were both included in the convention. As far as the Transvaal was concerned, the convention could be rendered a dead letter by the Consul resuming the powers delegated to the emigration agents.

AMERICA IN THE PHILIPPINES. THE MORO PROBLEM.

The Cablenews says: - With 18 dead and 52 wounded in the two days' fight at Jolo the American forces solved the Moro problem to the extent of 600 of the population. It is hard and perhaps unwise to say this, but what other solution than extermination is there? Not the killing of every man, woman and child of the More race, but the weeding out of the warriors, the annihilation of the fighting spirit, and the condign punishment of every attempt against American supremacy.

It is either this or get out of Moroland. Major General Wood knows it, and so did Governor Taft. Both are humane men, both deplore the stern necessity of the situation But if we are to remain in the south we must have law and order, and though they are mere savages who defy us, and perhaps deserving of charity for their ignorance, yet one cannot even be gentle with a savage when he seeks one's life in the rough way of the sons of

In the most important fight with the Moros before this one of Jolo there were over 400 of the natives killed. They have no chance against our machine guns, rifles and skill, and the massacre is accordingly disproportionate to our own losses. General Wood has been discreet in his government of these people, but when Paradise and houris are in promise for the slaying of Christians what hold can government have on a Malay Moslem?

Perhaps it were better first to rid them of their religious prejudices, and to this end to send a score of missionaries among them. Some of those who are in China now and who will either leave soon or shall be martyrized, might do well in the More country.

MODERN GERMAN LITERATURE.

In modern German literature, a wealth of idealism, and joyous vitality, has come to light, says Herr Francke in the Atlantic Monthly. The German novel has undergone a complete! transformation in the last fifteen years, for experience, are permitted to sit by in grunting novelists have learned at last the secrets of consternation while the young make phrases. rays :- The Manila business men should take a ber me," with Balfe's pretty melody. It will simpleness and of truthfulness of characterisation. What, however, gives their peculiar significance to these and similar German novels of to day is the noble, generous humanity verse approves of Chinese coolies in South pervading them, the sympathy with human view taken even of the degenerate and the criminal, the openness and hospitality for any kind of strong genuine feeling, the belief in the sacredness of life, the earnest desire to do justice to all of its types, the eagerness to approach all questions of private conduct or public morality without prejudice or malice, the trust in the saving quality honest endeavour and courageous grappling with circumstance. These novelists are moral leaders, even though they do not intend to be. They are helping toward a wider and fuller conception of humanity. It is unfortunate that the Church, both Protestant and Catholic, has held aloof from these new ideals; for no people is at heart more deeply religious than the German. But the Church has not placed herself on the same level with the poets, the thinkers, and the artists. This is described as the cardinal l paradox of contemporary German life.

A MIDDLE-AGED GRIEVANCE.

A pleasantly writt-n gramble by a man of mature ago appears in a recent English magazine, in which the modern youth is taxed with his faults. The writer says: - Not only are notions dismissed generically as old-fashioned: that would not offend us; to each is affixed some legible tag of opprobrium, and the taunts of youth are conveyed in a set of portable and well chosen phrases. Our taste in farniture and ornament is "Victorian." If we shrink from Gorky (or whatever he be called) because he is glosmy, we are contemptuously told that fiction is an art, and not a penny reading. Modern youngsters are so very clever; they do not realise that with advancing years the only philosophy desired is "a quiet pipe in the garden." They rame of Art (with a capital A), and pursue trivialities. A definite pursuit of a practical object could be understood. If our children were bent on joining the Salvation Army or emigrating to convert the Chinese, our open deraue would conceal a sneaking admiration, As it is, their passions, whether moral or artistic, are so far-fetched and refined as to wake no kindred spark in our own bosome. Every healthy mun of fifty is "something of a Philistine," realising that facts count, and philosophy must yield to bread-winning. Granted that some act is bad-what matter? It has comforted thousands, and the young should learn moderation. Our present grievance is, that the voung are too much with us. Given an inch they have taken an ell. In a rash moment we allowed them down to dessert, and before we could apply an effective check they usurped not only regular places at table, but the functions of wit and patron to the company at large, Occupying, immovably as it would seem, the seats of the scornful, they are by this time so numerous as to exclude as from the conversation altogether. We, who have earned our places at the board of life by hard work and chequered

SHIPPING IN THE FAR EAST.

All is not gold that glitters, and the prospect of extended and profitable shipping enterprise in the Far East, now that the Russo-Japanese war is over is qualified by a variety of consideration. The Japanese for one thing, appear to have by no means exhausted themselves in defeating their Muscovite enemy. We were regular lines which were kept up by chartered i to deal with that " great ora of trade with the Far Fast " which, among other things. genra Remis Companies to organise a new service from Antwerp to China, Japan and San Francisco, and home by West Coast ports and the Straits of Magellan. The eleverness of the Japanese as merchant steamship owners has its counterpart, so far as other countries are concerned, in the organising ability of the Germans. The Norwegian report to which we have referred says that the Germans have acquired practically a moropoly of the Bangkok trade, and that they are alf-powerful in that of the Straits Settlements. Indeed, the way in which the German companies have been able to expand their easiern trade commands entire admiration." What with the Japanese and the Germans, and as over-supply of tennage to boot, the prospects in the Far East of British shipping, with its lack of co-operation, are not of the brightest.—Shipping Gazette.

" SECWAR" TAFT'S PREFERMENT

We reproduce, verb. et lit., the following telegrams and comments from the Manila

Cablenews :-Washington, March 10.—Secretary of War Taft is to go on the Supreme Bench of the United States now. This announcement was made to-day by President Roosevelt. He succeeds Justice Henry B. Brown, who has offered his resignation. Justice Brown is 70) years old and has grown feeble. He leaves the bench at once and Taft takes his seat. Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller will retire shortly and it is almost certain that Taft will then be made Chief Justice. He is receiving [ congramlations from all over the United States. His successor as Secretary of Wir has not been raned and there is wide diversity of opinion as to who he will be. The name of Major General Henry C. Corbin has been mentioned. San Francisco, March 10.—Secretary of War Taft is stated to succeed Justice Henry B. Brown or the Supreme Bench of the United States when that distinguished jurist retires. This was given out to-day, but the exact date of the retirement of Justice Brown has not been fixed. He is the arkiter of the matter and beyond stating that he wished to leave his duties in the near future has not made public the time when he wil doff the ermine. It is said that he will retire before the close of this year.

When Tift was here he often said that his ambition in life was to be a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. He told President McKinley that, and has said the same thing to Roosevelt often. His mind is judicial and beloves law and the great problems which come before such a tribunal as the Supreme Court. Justice Brown is 70 years old and according to last reports from the United States is almost blind. Taft is still young and as such an appointment is for life, and the salary is ample for him, he will not hesitate to take it.

Another point taken into consideration by President Rossevelt is that with Taft on the bouch be is out of politics, and the field is clear for Root whom the president wants to succeed him as the Chief Executive.

Roosevelt said in a speech when Root became Secretary of State that Root was the greatest statesmansin the United States or in the world in decades. In the next issue, the following appeared :-Washington, March 12 .- Secretary of War Taft is not to accept the position on the Supreme Court Bench of the United States made vacant by the retirement of Justice Hen. Jap ry B. Brown, of Michigan. He will remain in the Cabinet of President Roosevelt. This statement was made to-day officially, but it is not denied that the position was offered Secretary Taft nor that he contemplated taking it.

Most of his friends here believe that he is considering it now,

"CHINA FOR THE CHINESE."

The British are said to be suffering from writes:-The effect in China of Russia's defeat | Chinese system of government, there would be neurasthenia, the first complete description of by Japan has made itself unmistakably felt no need of pessimism in writing of the comwhich was written in 1879. The causes of this difference are deep-lying, American newspapers will soon settle Chinese | the fashions of the day, would do much to racial, and complex, but those who study the. matter closely agree, I think, that its explanation lies primarily in the religious history of the two countries. The antional characteristics of the Chinese fall short of those of the Japanese chiefly in the capacity for altruism, sympathy, and artistic sensibility; the Chinese is essentially an individualist, whose ethics and ideals have been stereotyped, or rather petrified by centuries of Confucianism into a stiff code of social philosophy. In Japan the humanizing and civilizing influences of Buddhism have overshadowed and moulded the national life during the past thousand years, bringing to an but China remains to this day as she was vocations. They have lost many opportunities when first she heard the "gospel of tenderness," of establishing connections and interest; " and fettered already then by five hundred years the Committee "suggest that in the winter of undiluted Confucianism. tendencies. Simultaneously there exists amongst the more intelligent Chinese officials a not unnaturel propensity to believe that, whatever its results, the policy of young China may be encouraged with impunity; they regard the Anglo Japanese Alliance as practically guaranteeing China against partition, and they realize accurately enough the improbability of any Pow r supporting its strongest protests by soizure of territory or act of war. The immediate outlook is, therefore, unpromising, but the very rapidity with which the present mood has been developed and expressed may justify the hope that it will not endure. Should it persist, such incidents as the boycott and the recent rioting at Shanghai must inevitably recur, and sooner or later the maintenance of China's integrity, under such conditions, will become impossible. Japan, as the Power whose influence is paramount throughout the country, can undoubtedly do much to guide its deluded rulers into safer courses; by the more careful selection and training of Chinese students in Japan and by equally careful selection and supervision of the Japanese engaged for educational and other work in China, much can be done to eradicate and check the present trend of public opinion. The object of the Chinese Government to-day is unmistakably what it was when first she came into contact with the vanguard of commerce militant, and what that object is I cannot state better than by repeating the words of one who wrote on the subject of the Burlinghame Mission in 1869-Mr. Ross Browne, ex-Minister of the United States at Peking. Severely criticizing Mr. (now Sir Robert) Hart's pleafor patience and non-interference in dealing with China's tardy performance of her promises of progress, he says :---

"The object, therefore, was to prevent all progress inconsisent with Chinese isolation. There is nothing in the history of China, since the beginning of foreign intercourse, to warrant the idea that the Imperial rulers had the slightest idea of entering into such relations as contemplated by the law of nations. What they really wanted was time-time to repeat on a large scale what they had done in the way of | inst., a.m. preparation to repel foreign intrusion at Canton from 1842 to 1857 and at Taku from 1858 to 1859; time to establish arsenals, build gunboats, poison the minds of the people | The Indo-China str. HOW TO HELP EX-SOLDIERS.

The War Office has tinkered away at the Army with little success for a considerable movement to realize the actual position of the wall, is described by the originator in the matters stand, however, the classical scholar of | get "no reciprocity" for his own scheme: the old regime complacently reminds himself Afer all people have to be civilians as that Japan received her prehistoric education | well as soldiers; moreover, no one who lives to Monkawell holds that "conscription in England Amongst observers of the Far Eastern is an impossibility," and consequently that our Army must be brought up to the highest | half yearly meetings. The report, however, is point of efficiency. More attractions should be | mainly interesting from certain correspondence held out to the recruit. At present when he published in regard to the Registration of leaves the Army, he is inferior to the civilian | Partnerships proposal. These letters were from the employers' point of view. As to written in 1905 and must have been in the employing reservists in the State service knowledge of the Chamber or at least this of private firms in lengaging men, he writes: employment-one is to exclude his competitors, and the other is to train him to compete with them on favourable terms. Now, Major-General Chapman, C.B., lecturing on December 12th, 1889, made these pertinent remarks: A full Chamber of Commerce and the Hongkong consideration of the various efforts which have | Chamber recognised that legislation on the calre dy been made to secure Government | subject was inevitable and as far as Bengal is can be secured to soldiers who have completed is by rendering the men themselves, through their Army training, better qualified than others to compete for employ. workshops. More evidence is available. In 1891 a Select Committee of the House of Commons (seventeen members, mostly connected with the Services), with Sir George Chesney in the chair, inquired into the employment of dispharged soldiers and sailors. In June, 1895, they issued their report, of which the concluding paragraph runs: All authorities are agreed that nothing tonds so much to popularise service in the Army as a knowledge on the part of those who serve that they will not find themselves straided, and unable to find work at the end of their military career." They further observe that soldiers "enlist at exactly that period of months especially, and subject always to the efficiency, soldiers might be given some further encouragement than that which they at present benefit after their term of service with the colours shall be completed. "Your Committee would also recommend the further and more Armed with these documents Lord Monkswell the practical furtherance of the idea. The War Secretary gave "civil answers," but no information until February 26th, 1900, when he announced that the experiment had been tried at Woolwich and had failed. Forty-one men had put down their names for instruction, and at the and of the season forty had withdrawn. This did not look promising, but on investigation Lord Monkswell found that the "experiment" had been conducted under the worst possible conditions :-- In the first place the soldiers were drafted into their classes in March-a date which in itself ensured the failure of the experiment. Having made this initial and latal blunder in the teeth of the Chesney Report, the authorities proceeded to make assurance doubly suro_and to render even the slightest glimmer of success hopelessly impossible by a further serios of blunders in conceivably ingenuous. They contrived to make the instruction assume an almost exclusively military aspect, that the men were suspicious from first that the object of the instruction was not bona fide with a view to their welfare in civil life so much as to get the benefit of their skill while with the colours. Having firmly established this prejudice they added yet another element to the difficulties of the situation. The totally unskilled soldier was drafted into classes side by side with the fairly skilled artisan, and had to make what he could out of feaching that, in Dr. Garnett's opinion, was far above his head. was any relaxation granted in respect of parades" or other military duties.* Surely a scheme that appears to have so much to recommend it is worth a better trial than this.

REGISTRATION OF PARTNERSHIPS.

AN INTERESTING DISCOVERY.

Wo [Singapore Free Press] have to thank the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce for a copy of the 1905 report which has reached us. The book contains besides accounts, etc., reports of the special general meeting, the annual and (police, etc.) and appealing to the patriotism | Chairman and Secretary when the famous meeting was held at which the Chamber by 19 votes to seven, opposed the principle of the bill. As we pointed out then the Penang Chamber was decidedly in favour of the scheme It now appears, though we were not told so at the time, that both the Bengal employment for reserve soldiers as a matter | concerned was so desired that there the Chamber of privilege, has convinced me that the only | had actually framed a bill and it was Governway by which remunerative civil employment | ment which was hanging back. Despite this it under Government, or in the labour market, was said in effect that no influential body in the East desired registration, and yet all the time their period of service with the colours both Bengal and Hongkong recognized that the desire was so strong that practical legislation was imminent if not pending. These letters in appendix K should give memb rs of the ment in civil life. Sir Evelyn Wood has Chamber considerable food for reflection, but advocated the training of soldiers in regimental they would doubtless have had for greater effect had they been printed and laid on the table of the new famous meeting of the "majority of twelve" who claimed to represent the real weight of opinion in the Settlement.

BRITISH WARSHIPS IN THE EAST

The battle of Tsushima, while securing for long course of years the entire immunity of Japan from the perils of foreign naval enterprise, has had for Britain a result that is entirely for good. The battleship squadron we maintained in the Far East became, with the Russian fleet's destruction, an unemployed force, with no prespect of ever being wanted even as a power in reserve. So it was rightly sent to European waters and there re-distributed amongst the fleets as newly organised. The battleships in the Far East are now in the main those of our ally Japan, and occasionally one or two of the United States, a Power with whose general policy in the Far East both Britain and Japan are entirely at one. Our cruiser squadron, highly efficient as it is, is quite strong enough to represent British influence in the new and favourable situation created by the renewed Alliance. General concentration and compact re-distribution is now the keynote of our naval policy, for it may be said with truth that, outside Europe, the world contains no force, at present, which constitutes a danger to peace. The Singapore Free Press, from which the foregoing remarks are taken, evidently does not fear complications arising out of the Chinese proletariat agitation.

FRENCH SHIPPING SERVICE TO INDO-CHINA.

THE NEW SCHEME. Referring in his consular report on Indo-China to the new scheme of mail shipping service which the French Government have been considering, Mr. G. W. Pearson states that it is iproposed to do away with the Marseilles Australian line and that to Bombay, and to reduce gradually the subsidy on the Saigon Shanghai line. By way of substitutes there will be a new line from Saigon to Sydney via Singapore, Batavia, Noumea, and Brisbane, and enother monthly service, in addition to those now established, between Marseilles and Saigon. The latter service will be extended to Tonkin until railway facilities have been proyided, when the subsidy for this extension will be unnecessary. Then a weekly line may be run between Marseilles and Saigon. It is, however, very probable. Mr. Pearson thinks, that the scheme detailed above will be found impracticable. It will probably be necessary to supplement the line of mail boats by a service of large steamers running between Lyons and Marseilles to Shanghai and Canton, in view of the expected increase of trade in rice from Into China and in silk between China and France. A project for a subsidised line between Tourane and by a Frenchman. Terms very moderate. Swatow, Fcochow, Shanghai, Manila, Osaka, and Yokohama is on foot. The success of such a line must depend upon the improvement made in the ports of Tourane and Saigon, which need new docks and godowns, coal yards and rice

SPEEDILY CURED BY CUTIGURA REMEDIES

Miss Nellie Vander Wiele, of Lakeside, N. Y., writing under date of April 18, 1904, says: "I do wish you would publish this letter in the newspapers, so that others suffering as I have may see it and be helped. I suffered for many months with an awful skin disease, sores covering my ears, neck, and cheeks. Scabs would form and they would swell, and itch day and night. Then they would break open and blood and matter run out. I had tried many different remedies, but none of them did me any good, I was growing worse when I tried the Cuticura Remedies. The first application helped me, and when I had used two cakes of Cuticura Soap, three bores of Cuticura Ointment, and three bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, I was completely cured."

TORTURING, DISFIGURING Humours, Eczemas, Itchings, and Chafings Cured by Cuticura

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head: the facial disfigurement, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter, and salt theum, -all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them, That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are such stands proven beyond all doubt by the testimony of the civilized world.
